

With the support of THS, John Dixon has published his labour of love – Tewkesbury's Two Forgotten Railways. It covers the history of our railway age from 1840 to 1961, looking at its impact on the town. It also tries to allocate responsibility for its closure – can we really blame Dr. Beeching? It features both the workers and the locomotives. The foreword was provided by Ian Boskett, and Sam Eedle designed the cover.

A book signing will take place at Alison's Bookshop from 10-12 on Saturday, 17 November and there will be a guided walk along the Railway's Remains on Sunday 18th from 11-1pm – starting at Morrisons with a charge of £2 in support of Parkinson's UK.

We hope you will enjoy being reminded of our Railways.
